Grenada has had a deluge of senatorial candidates this week. Jim Eastland, Monday; Rollin Wall, Wednesday; and Wall Doney, tonight. Rollin Wall's new name for him, How do you like it? will be here later.

Each one gives himself a damn good name, while each gives the others damn bad names.

Each says he is gaining, while the others are losing.

My ticket is "Vote for nobody now serving in Washington; and vote for a man closest to Grenada." That may be provincial and arbitrary, but that's my ticket just the same.

We understand the gigantic over-head bridge on No. 8 over the main line of the I. C. System's tracks is open or about to be opened to travel.

The gold fish in the newly cleaned out pool in the city park are almost frantic for dips of snuff or chews of tobacco.

Go out and vote today, for H. J. Ray, the only candidate for alderman from West Ward. An election must be held to comply with the law, even if there is but one candidate. Mr. Ray, Mr. Ray has been out, looking for; now he can be in, looking out for a while.

There is precious little consolation for our side to be had from the news from the battle fronts. Time, our greatest ally, is ebbing away.

Talk heard from Camp Shelby. A man without arms was sent to the induction center there. He was disappointed when the doctor told him, "You'll do. See that man pumping water. He is blind, to out there and you can tell him when the part is full."

A country that is not worth fighting for is a country not worth living in.

We believe yet, as we have stated repeatedly, that a man who is rejected or deferred should have an official badge or button to wear. Many young men, apparently hale and hearty, have serious physical defects, which are not apparent to the layman. Many of them really want to serve, but are barred from service. They naturally hate to "feel" people whom they pass saying "Whythell that blankety blank in the army?"

For those who employ (and get away with) fictitious excuses, nothing but the withering contempt of the people should be their lot in life.

I guess I will have to start preaching unless more ads come in. Seriously, the newspapers, both great and small, face terrible problems. As for the G.W., we solicit a greater share of the job printing business in Grenada to the end that we can continue to put out a good paper whether we have any ads or not.

Aint they sweet.

"Miss" Dora Adams has returned to her home in Mobile after spending quite a while with her sons here in Grenada. She is a remarkable woman.

It should always be remembered that my article about the Termites' Paradise criticized ONLY the shabby, shoddy frame buildings, while it complimented the roads, bridges, sewer system and railroad spurs. Nobody has the guts to say that 2x4 knotty rafters, four feet on center, in a 20-22 feet span, is safe construction.

I assume that the City Council will carry out the implied wishes of the people by appointing a Police Judge at its next regular meeting.

Mr. Laurence J. Phillips, head of the Chas. T. Main Co., asked us to state that he is in very urgent need of a number of key employees scheduled to come here soon from New Orleans, and urged the people of Grenada to "double up" and find room for these men so vitally necessary to the expediting of the engineering work.

While Grenada is terribly crowded, there yet remain a good many homes, owned by independent people, which could accommodate other men. YOU (with the vacant rooms) can help the war effort by renting rooms—even if you do not need the money.

It should also be remembered that August 1 is the deadline for rearranging rents to conform to federal regulations.

Do not forget that the 24 white boys accepted for service will return to Camp Shelby on August 11.

Circuit Court Started A Lengthy Session Monday

Judge John F. Allen opened what promises to be a two-week session of circuit court Monday morning, but opening day was principally devoted to the impaneling of the three juries, consisting of the docket and to political speeches by Messrs. Eastland and Abernethy.

Two flicker cases, each involving a woman, were continued after having been appealed from the lower court. Jail sentences were held up pending good behavior. A drunken driver case was heard Wednesday. The case of Hopgood, charged with the slaying of Percy Mabry in Beat Five, will probably consume a day or so when the difficulty of obtaining a jury is overcome.

The juries were as follows: Grand jury: J. H. Watkins, Jim Neal, Foreman; H. J. Tishman, Walter Hudson, S. B. Williams, Paul Phillips, R. R. Thompson, L. W. Heath, H. K. Floyd, C. S. Williams, W. H. Perry, J. M. Harris, Edward Vaughn, J. D. Blakeley, Sr., L. O. Wilson, Henry Dunn, A. B. Moore, S. A. Grantham, D. W. Orban, Sr. Vernon Mayes, Riley Carpenter, Bailiff.

Jury No. 1: J. R. Parker, G. E. Spear, E. L. Bolder, Jr., Richard Tingle, E. L. Cook, Dave Williams, Jr., Ted Whitton, John Carver, W. M. Yeager, J. O. Ferguson, A. W. Mullen, Burton Worsham.

Jury No. 2: Millard Tillman, J. J. Gray, M. E. Denby, T. S. Schultz, H. L. Montgomery, G. W. Ligon, G. R. Mitchell, Carl Haven, Wallace Smart, L. B. Mitchell, Ed Spruill, Ed Kersh.

Eastland, Candidate For U. S. Senate Speaks In Grenada

Through the courtesy of Judge Allen, Mr. James O. Eastland, who was introduced by Dr. R. A. Clanton in most glowing terms, was permitted to address the large crowd assembled at the county court house at the meeting of court Monday morning. His remarks were frequently interrupted by applause from the large group.

"As a member of the Senate last year I am proud of my right to increase the cotton acreage allotment of the farmers in Mississippi," Jim Eastland, candidate for the nomination to the United States Senate in the August primaries said here Monday in a campaign address.

He pointed to what he declared as "discriminatory national legislation which has shackled the South since the War Between the States," as the main of state preventing a universal prosperity for all people. He said that a farm program he launched in the Senate was designed to bring about the changes which must be made.

"I had a program," he stated, "which I was in the Senate last year and I would like to go back to Washington to carry that program to a successful conclusion. All my life I have studied the problems of the South and the farmer, and I have seen and felt the need of a program to help the people."

Outlining this program, he said he favored the policy of the government to assist all worthy citizens in acquiring homes and farms, and in improving their situation in life. He advocated raising the age limit of civil service, as he pointed out that men in their 50s could serve in Congress, as supreme court justices and as president, but could not be employed as a minor government clerk.

Reviewing his record as interim senator, following the death of Senator Pat Harrison, he recounted the successful fight he made to prevent the placing of ceilings on cottonseed and Southern pine timber, and the fight he made to prohibit the government from buying clothes made in Canada from cotton imported from Brazil.

Of this fight, he asserted, "My efforts were credited with bringing $25 a ton more for cottonseed and $30 a bale more for cotton. The fight against the importation of Brazilian cotton resulted in the sale of 300,000 bales of Southern cotton to Canadian mills."

He said, in commenting further on the program he has planned, "If elected, I will work for and sponsor legislation which will guarantee means of livelihood for service men for at least six months after their discharge, and until they can find employment and resume their places in our social and economic routine. After all, this is nothing more than unemployment insurance now available to industrial labor and others in virtually every state."

Hon. Roland Wall Addresses People Here Wednesday Nite

Hon. Roland Wall, of Brookhaven, self-styled independent candidate for the U. S. Senate, addressed a friendly crowd of people assembled in the public square on the hot, sultry night of Wednesday July 29, after having been introduced by a former fellow townsman, Mayor L. C. Proby. He need not worry about the crowd for he got about as many as one of the minor prophets would get, should he come back to earth and speak in Grenada.

He reviewed his career beginning with birth in North Carolina, attending Mississippi College, spending 27 months in the AEF 1917-1919, serving ten years as Mayor of Brookhaven and six years as state head of the WPA. He stressed the statement that he was indeed the only independent candidate in the race. When elected and seated, he would be free and independent and would work with "Billy Bow" for everything that was good for the State and Nation, but positively asserted that he would not have social dealings with the master of "Dream House, Sr. and Dream House, Jr." He hoped to help in eliminating many of the useless organizations and use some of the money thus saved to pay the old folks at least $30.00 per month. He hoped to stop the use of phony grain in the manufacture of alcoholic liquors.

In most adroit and effective manner, he paid his respects to "Me Too" Doney, "Long Staple Jim" and Rollin Wall, their own improvised titles, but seemed to have saved his sharpest arrows for Old Bilbo.

Mr. Wall is the only ex-soldier candidate in the race, and he is not ashamed to call himself "The Soldier Candidate." He is a very forceful speaker and appeared to make a good impression upon his hearers.

P. S. If he was from North Mississippi I would vote for him.

AN APPEAL FOR ROOMS AND SMALL APARTMENTS

Mrs. W. W. W. Many defense workers at Camp Shelby are in dire need of a room to live in. In many instances, where their wives are with them, they need small apartments in order that they have a place to cook.

Please open your homes to these people. They are to be here from 3 to 6 months and it's Grenada citizens duty to help house them. Put a sign on your front porch list with an agency or put a classified ad in the papers of the town, but please do something. The appeal is almost a demand that something be done at once.

The following groups of men, who are being trained at Camp Shelby, are: 1. 1st Cavalry Division, 2. 1st Infantry Division, 3. 1st Armored Division, 4. 1st Airborne Division, 5. 1st Marine Division, 6. Information, Please

At the time the government acquired the land in the camp area, I heard many rumors of injustice done the landowners. As should they were merely "rumors." What I now want to P.M.T.S. if I could P.M.T.S. which can be substantiated by the records of the government. I want to publish and settle the matter of buying and selling of the land of the government.

I am sure that the government has wanted and still wants to buy the land. I am sure that the government has wanted and still wants to buy the land. I am sure that the government has wanted and still wants to buy the land.

To that end, I want to publish the names of the owners of the land. I want to publish the names of the owners of the land. I want to publish the names of the owners of the land.

I have heard of the government buying the land. I have heard of the government buying the land. I have heard of the government buying the land. I have heard of the government buying the land.

Some of the rumors are that the government is buying the land. Some of the rumors are that the government is buying the land. Some of the rumors are that the government is buying the land. Some of the rumors are that the government is buying the land.

Who Is Right?

In his address given to the people of the State, Secretary of State Cordell Hull, devoted an entire section of his address to the victims of the Japanese. He said that the Japanese had taken away the property of the victims of the Japanese. He said that the Japanese had taken away the property of the victims of the Japanese.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull, in his address to the people of the State, said that the Japanese had taken away the property of the victims of the Japanese. He said that the Japanese had taken away the property of the victims of the Japanese.

What is the Secretary of State Cordell Hull's address to the people of the State? He said that the Japanese had taken away the property of the victims of the Japanese.

Furloughs Or Fighting

How, Ross Collins, candidate for the United States Senate, is now campaigning that every soldier be allowed a furlough, as a matter of fact, every six months and that the government pay his traveling expenses to and from home.

As father of one son in the army and as father of another son who will soon be there, I would like to see my boys come home every week and at government expense. But, of course, that is not what there has already been too much of. I am sure that the government has wanted and still wants to buy the land.

The army to which I belonged (and I can not say that I contributed ANYTHING to the victory) WON the war. It was unknown to me for a soldier to get a furlough just to go home to "eat" about. Unless he had a REAL reason, he never did get home unless he went AWOL. In our war, the soldier, who received a furlough, paid his own expenses, and he paid the railroad.

I cannot, of course, read Mr. Collins' mind, but I believe his appeal is FOR SOLDIERS ONLY, and that he knows that such legislation would meet with vigorous protest from the War Department. If he is the "greatest civilian military expert" as his friends claim, he should know that there is enough of soldiers already. I should have said perhaps that this appeal is FOR VOTES ONLY, instead of saying the appeal was FOR SOLDIERS ONLY.

A Disgruntled Bunch

Forty odd young white men, many of them married men, left Grenada Monday morning for the induction center in Camp Shelby.

I heard a good many of them talking and many of them were very "sour" and disgruntled. Whether they had the right dope or not, many of them thought that, while they were being sent, others, more liable for service were being deferred.

While on this general subject, I never could see why young men whose parents are financially able to send them to law schools, medical schools and engineering schools, should be exempted from service, while some poor married devil from Black Hawk or Mosquito Lake is jerked up and sent to the army. To confess the truth, it would make little difference to many of the poor negroes and poor whites whether they were under Hitler or Roosevelt. They have nothing now, would have nothing under Hitler, and would probably have nothing under Roosevelt. The rich and well-to-do have SOMETHING to protect. They have a greater stake in the war than the ignorant negro or the poor white man.

Much of this business looks cockeyed to me.

Me and the USA.

A Threat To Our Nation

When representatives of the C. I. O. unions referring to the wage increase of forty-four cents per day granted by the War Labor Board when they had asked a dollar declared "The government says work or fight." Well, we'll work for a dollar a day increase, and if we don't get it "we'll fight." They implied a threat of rebellion against the United States.

Since action on the requested wage increase came from the government, the threat to fight can only mean that the CIO officials are ready to fight against the United States unless they get the increases which they demand.

The statement cannot be treated lightly. It is a threat against the war effort for the production of steel is still the fundamental on which war materials depend. A fight by labor under such circumstances is rebellion against the United States. It is treason, for refusal to produce the materials out of which machines of war are made is without question giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

A show down should be demanded immediately. The situation demands a show down instead of back down on the part of the government officials.

The above editorial appeared in last Friday's Greenwood Commonwealth.

When the representatives of the CIO said: "We'll work for a dollar a day increase and if we don't get it we'll fight."

Fight how and what?

The statement of the CIO representative is susceptible of two constructions or interpretations. If the CIO official meant that if their union laborers did not get a raise of one dollar a day they would fight the government by strikes and interference with government defense work he is guilty of treason and should be dealt with accordingly and any and all members of the CIO who backed him up or attempted to do so, are, likewise guilty of treason and should suffer the fate due a traitor.

What a terrible and dangerous mess we patriotic Americans face, all because our representatives in congress and our administration officials permitted the labor unions to dictate to them terms under which they would work or else—that "else" evidently meant, if you don't stand behind us we'll strike and tie up every plant that holds government contracts for the production of needed war materials. To bear out that statement strikes all over this nation have occurred periodically and in practically every instance the racketeering labor union leaders GOT WHAT THEY WANTED in the way of increased pay, etc. etc.

For over a year we have been writing and even begging our representatives in congress to do something to stop the strikes. The members of the House voted for a law to put an end to strikes over a year ago, so our representatives in congress, Mr. Whittington wrote me but Senator Barkley, a strong administration leader, blocked the passage of the bill in the senate, and altho this nation is in war up to its neck nothing has been done and the labor union members continue to walk out and tie up production of materials necessary for us to win this war.

Now the question naturally arises, what will the congress and the administration officials do about the threat of the CIO's representative. In the strict sense of the law those who are against the government in any way are traitors and they should be held to account for their actions in defiance of the government's actions in trying to win this war.

Will the congress do anything about it? No, not until the fall elections are over.

Will President Roosevelt demand that congress pass adequate laws against the racketeers and punish them for arousing and putting in motion action calling for a walkout and a tie up of industrial plants that have contracts for the manufacture of war materials necessary to win this war?

France lost its fight against Germany because of traitorous, treasonable acts of its political leaders who sold out to their enemies.

Will the people of this nation follow in the footsteps of France and become the slaves of Germany and Japan? God forbid—death is an hundred times preferable.

Liberty-loving people of the United States—are you going to sit tamely down and permit the overthrow of our nation by the damnable and dastardly acts of a bunch of traitorous labor racketeers cause the overthrow of YOUR GOVERNMENT? It's time to act NOW. Get the wires to your congressmen hot and keep them hot until action is taken to condemn and convict every son-of-a-gun who dares to excite labor troubles and deal with them just as the Military Commission is now trying the eight Nazi saboteurs who were getting ready to commit dastardly crimes, including ruthless murder of our men, women and children and the blowing up of our munition plants, bridges, railroads and committing any crime that would tend to cause us to lose this war.

Take a little time off, you men of prominence and influence and write or wire your congressmen to get busy.—Indianola Enterprise.

Expediting The Coming Of Inflation

Uncle Sam has three ways of getting money, viz: borrowing it, collecting it as taxes or PRINTING it.

He is spending about three times as much as he collects in taxes. Therefore, to meet the deficiency, he has two methods left, viz: borrowing it or PRINTING IT.

You have heard very much of inflation. Inflation is a result of a superabundance of money, caused by PRINTING money. If there is a short cotton crop, resulting in a demand greater than the supply, the price of cotton, in terms of money, goes up. If there is a large cotton crop, resulting in a supply greater than the demand, the price of cotton, in terms of money, goes down. Strange to say, there can be TOO MUCH money. There can come a time when there is more money than there are articles to purchase with that money. When that time comes, money will not buy as much cotton, nails, printing, or any other of the millions of tangible things. As the supply of money increases, its purchasing power decreases. As the purchasing power of money decreases, there must be MORE money to buy the necessary things. The farther it goes, the worse it gets. And that's inflation.

Uncontrolled inflation will ruin ALL of us. It will wipe out every individual who lives "on paper," that is on annuities, interest on bonds and stocks and mortgages; it will render valueless all insurance policies. It will wipe out the value of ALL pensions. Uncontrolled inflation, therefore, is something that ALL of us should strive to avert.

Now, let us say that you have one hundred dollars of idle money in the bank, in your pocket or in the fruit jar. At the present time you can keep it, or you can lend it to your Uncle Sam. If you lend it to him, you will have prevented him from printing one hundred dollars in "new" money. If you keep it, you will have caused him to print one hundred dollars in "new" money. All of this "new" money, remember, is adding to the supply of money, thus reducing the purchasing power of your one hundred dollars. If too many people elect to keep their money idle in the bank, in their pockets or hidden in the fruit jars, the amount of "new" money necessary to be printed will be enormous, and the reduced purchasing power of ALL money will be enormous.

Those who DO keep their funds idle in their pockets or in banks or in fruit jars are merely expediting the coming of uncontrolled inflation, and are helping, to their own limited extent, to bring chaos to our economic structure.

"The Empty Room"

That is the caption of an advertisement—one of the most inspiring advertisements we have ever seen. The illustration shows a middle-aged man, standing alone and looking into a boy's bedroom. The text of him saying:

"This is my boy's room."

"This is where he slept."

"This is where he dreamed a child's dreams."

"This is where he saw a man's vision."

"Here, in this empty room, are faded pictures of teammates and heroes . . . books scribbled over with notes and exclamations . . . the gloves and spike shoes we hung up for good before he went to war . . . the silver cup he won at Sea Bright . . . bright pennants . . . and all the careless memoranda, the echoes of his days."

"If fathers could only pour their hate through the hot barrels of smoking guns and write the records of their grief with bayonet steel!"

"They said I was too old to fight, though I'm only 50."

"But, I'm too old to fight and drop a stick of bombs, I'm not too old to lay my money on the line for War Savings Stamps and Bonds!"

"Maybe I am too stiff and slow to fly, but I've got control of enough to keep my car speed under 40 . . . so they can keep their fighting planes above 400!"

"And if I can't march 30 miles a day with a full pack, I can walk two miles to work and back to help save gas and rubber!"

"No, I'm not bitter any more because I won't win this war behind a gun or on a ship or in the sky."

"I've come around to thinking that here at home we've got the job of passing the ammunition along, of sacrificing little things, of giving up and doing without, of looking ahead to 'less' instead of 'more.' Somebody's got to do the necessary, undramatic things . . . and I guess that's what older men are for."

To the United States Rubber Co., which sponsors this advertisement, and to the artist and the writer who prepared it, our thanks. Through the door of an empty room they have given a glimpse beyond the squabbling and striving for advantage, the petty arguments and futile back passing that sometimes seem to be the chief substance of our war effort here at home, into the real heart of America.

I am for Long Steeple Eastland and Short Steeple Abernethy.

UNDER THE MAGNOLIA TREE

By Herbert B. Allen

Recently, the press of the world has recorded the lightning moves and spectacular victories of the commander of the German North African Corps, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel. Not since the days when the British commander, General Wavell, swept through North Africa has there been such a driving series of victories.

Wavell and Rommel are desert commanders of the highest skill, for simple reason that they both devoted years to patient study, research and experiment in desert warfare. Because desert warfare has no resemblance to traditional warfare, they developed radically different technique to meet radically different desert conditions.

Marshal Rommel's daring, initiative and success in his present campaign are worthy of the most serious attention of this nation. Marshal Rommel is the personification of what American commanders are NOT!

Rommel has absolutely no use whatever for the traditional modes of warfare of the past, whether these methods are those of the German army, or of any other army. Rommel has nothing but contempt for the moss covered methods of the armies of yesterday—a lesson that is almost too much for our Regular Army officers to swallow.

Rommel is a hard driving officer who strives day and night to accomplish the seemingly impossible in warfare, while American commanders stay up nights calculating how to win some inconsequential victory where the chances are 100 to 1 in their favor.

Consequently, Rommel has accomplished some of the daring objectives he has striven for while American commanders have made this country ridiculous by accomplishing virtually nothing with the large armed forces at their disposal.

What is there about Rommel personally that makes him one of the outstanding commanders of today? First, he is young, being only 50 years of age. Second, he is enterprising, daring, original and inspiring. Third, he is in the thick of the fighting WHILE the battle is in progress, knows personally exactly what is going on at ALL times, and is, in a position, a direct operations intelligently—ON THE SPOT!

Probably Marshal Rommel has never admitted that he owes his success to a study of the methods of the greatest army officer of modern times. That would be extremely embarrassing to any German—for that commander was a British officer, the great Duke of Wellington.

History has been very lavish in its praise of Napoleon. But it took a greater general to make Napoleon a British prisoner of war, and to exile him to St. Helena. The Duke of Wellington defeated Napoleon with an army inferior in numbers and greatly inferior in artillery; and it was in the use of artillery that Napoleon was a master.

Had Napoleon possessed the genius of the Iron Duke, events would probably have taken a different course, for Wellington's victory at the Battle of Waterloo (Belgium) on June 18, 1815, was a turning point in world history.

Rommel knows the difference in the methods of the Iron Duke and Napoleon. Therefore Rommel is not back at headquarters during a battle, waiting to receive reports of developments AFTER they have taken place, when it is too late to REMEDY a serious situation. Like the great Iron Duke, Rommel is always IN the thick of the fighting.

Before the battle of Waterloo, Napoleon expressed his contempt for the British in general and for Wellington in particular. Napoleon had his plan of battle in mind and depended upon his great French marshals and generals to carry it into action successfully.

On the other hand, Wellington never planned his battles. He selected the battlefields on which he fought, and he depended upon his ability to direct the battle after it had commenced.

While Napoleon waited majestically at headquarters, Wellington, on his famous horse Copenhagen, was all over the battlefield. He handled his infantry as a captain would maneuver his ship. Where the French attacks were heaviest, Wellington was there reforming his regiments, even taking a personal hand in reorganizing individual infantry companies.

When the French cavalry was charging within twenty yards of the British lines, the deep voice of the Iron Duke was heard encouraging his soldiers. In ordering British cavalry to attack, Wellington was there to send them off with a cheery word—and on their return he was there to welcome them with a word of thanks.

Whenever there was action the Duke of Wellington was on the spot. Rommel has followed the Duke's example as no other modern general has done. Wherever there has been fighting in Libya, Rommel has been on the scene of action and has controlled the outcome.

There is nothing new under the sun—or on the desert. It has all been done before. It just takes a smart man with the energy, daring and initiative of that master general, the Duke of Wellington.

Where is there an American Duke of Wellington? Where is there an American general officer who has contempt for the moss covered military technique of two short years ago? Where is there an American officer with the personal bravery, the physical stamina, the mental energy, and the proven imagination, shrewdness, initiative, daring and resourcefulness to emulate the Duke of Wellington?

There is such an officer among our generals, and he is not sitting behind a desk in Washington, while the civilized world is aflame, waiting for every democratic army to move—excepting the U. S. Army!

At the moment he is in Australia, where he was ordered when that region was in peril of invasion. With the passing of that menace, that American officer is most desperately needed in the United States.

There is only ONE American officer who has the courage, the drive and the experience to get the U. S. Army into ACTION! That officer is General Douglas MacArthur. BRING MACARTHUR BACK!

NOTE BY EDITOR: on Monday of this week—several days after Mr. Allen wrote the above—the following appeared in the Washington Merry-Go-Round:

Only a few inside the War Department know it, but Field Marshal Rommel, who lunched almost to Al-elandria last month, studied his military strategy in the United States.

He was permitted by the War Department to come here and study the battle fields of the War Between the States. These battles featured some of the most brilliant generalship of any way in history, especially for fast-moving lightly-equipped troops.

As a result, Rommel had adopted the tactics of Lee and Stonewall Jackson in the Libyan campaign. Using fast tanks and armored cars, he roved over the desert with the mobility of the Confederate cavalry, and was able to hit the British, then he in a new place, before the British knew what had hit them.

Note: Some years ago Col. Truman Smith, long U. S. military attaché in Berlin, warned the British that Rommel was the ablest man in the German Army. The British poo-pooed the idea, indicated that Col. Smith was influenced by his admiration of the Nazi military.

THRU A WOMAN'S EYE

By Mrs. W. W. Whitaker

The official invitation extended by the Mayor and Board of Aldermen, of the City of Grenada to the United Service Organization, was sent to Mr. Zwingle on July 25th. This invitation was extended because the USO made the best proposition.

Monday morning when the 42 potential soldiers left Grenada for Camp Shelby there was a small crowd of folks present to tell the men good-bye.

Tears were shed by the women, but I am sure the men were more philosophical about their going. They know their responsibility at this time, and are ready to assume it. The tears were tears of parting anyway for every woman there was proud of her man. These men will return home in a few days and those accepted for military duty will be required to report to camp two weeks from now. Be on hand to tell them good-bye.

Let us, the mothers of American soldiers, whatever our race, creed or faith, sustain and strengthen our sons as they enter the armed forces of our beloved America. By being brave women we will strengthen the defenses, protect and safe guard the covenant of democracy which has become the birthright of all Americans, for now and for posterity. Shame and lingering disgrace will follow him who shirks his duty and shame and ignominy will be the lot of the mother who fails her son and her country now.

It is rumored that a battalion of negro soldiers will be the first to arrive at Camp McCain, and with these soldiers will be a large number of commissioned and non-commissioned officers. There will be a greater demand than ever for small apartments and rooms for these soldiers and their wives. Look over your house and see if you can help these people by renting out a room or two.

As never before in the history of America we need leadership whose acts and deeds square with the words and phrases. Every voter in the nation will do well to think seriously before voting for any person to fill a responsible position anywhere.

This sentence, read recently, is food for thought, "The mild, noble people who inherit the earth, no matter who conquers it, pass it by." The conqueror fears: down, the mild, noble inheritor of the earth, rebuilds.

RED CROSS WANTS KNITTERS

Whitaker, chairman of knitted articles for Red Cross, states that thread for knitting garments for the army, navy and men in relation has arrived and every one who can knit is urged to volunteer to do this work. Mrs. Whitaker lives on Earned Ave. and her phone is 231.

THE RENTAL BUSINESS

The rental business is a "Cope People" say that because of the demand they can rent without listing their property with an agent. The fall to take notice of the fact that many of the very best citizens to come to town contact a rental agent first. The agent's fee is small, so give this matter more serious thought.

Dr. Caruthers Tells About Mae West

Just want to tell you how much we enjoy the paper. It always gives us a feeling that we have just had a visit to Grenada. Seldom a line is missed in the reading.

Some time ago you were wondering what had become of Mae West. The story current here is that she died and went up to the Pearly Gates and St. Peter would not let her enter, he told her that her conduct in the world was not just what it should have been. She insisted that she had repented of the past and just didn't wish to go to any other place. After being told her errors she persuaded the old fellow to let her enter. While he was arguing she told him that the best thing she could do was to throw out her sins and she would be good. She thanked him and with her most alluring smile she passed through the gates of his kingdom. All of which came true, wondering who you have been so worried about her whereabouts.

Hope to see you in the fall if the rubber holds out.

Sincerely,
S. S. Caruthers,
P. S. Your partner and eye for eye editor also contributes with great enjoyment of the story.

Mr. Caruthers:
Our fighting men are doing their share. Here at home the least we can do is put 10% of our income in War Bonds for our share in America.

Ceiling Prices Must Be Posted Says Mr. Lay

Retailers were again cautioned to make proper display of their ceiling prices on cost-of-living items by Mac N. Lay of the State Office of OPA, who was in Grenada this week.

Mr. Lay emphasized OPA regulations which require that ceiling prices on cost-of-living items be posted clearly near the articles to which they apply. A general list in a remote section of the store is not permissible, he stated.

The Office of Price Administration's representative declared that a vast majority of retailers were quick to comply with regulations, but that some still do not understand the procedure which they must follow in posting their ceiling prices.

Every item defined as a cost-of-living commodity must have a posted ceiling price, Mr. Lay declared. These must be posted on the shelves or racks where the merchandise is offered for sale. If articles of more than one price are carried generally in one display, the ceiling price of each must be marked plainly.

In complying with regulations, administered by OPA, Mr. Lay said, retailers are making a direct contribution to the war effort. The fundamental purpose of the maximum price regulation is to hold down the cost of living which, in turn, brings a great reduction in the cost of producing necessary materials of war.

The Federal War Price and Rationing Board has an adequate supply of General Maximum Price Regulation Bulletin No. 1 and 2, which provide complete information for retailers. These bulletins, which explain in detail the OPA regulations, may be secured at the following:

Grenada County Health Department

(Dr. F. L. McGahay)
Just at this time, when our country is engaged in the most destructive and most expensive war in our history, there is nothing more important than the health of our people. If our people are not in good physical condition, then our factories, our defense program, our Army, Navy, Air Corps, and every branch connected with our all-out effort to win this war will naturally be unable to render the most efficient service. No man or woman is able to render satisfactory service of any kind if they are not in good health.

Your County Health Department, cooperating with your State Board of Health is going to put forth every possible effort to try to keep our entire citizenship in good health. It is in this way that we of the Health Department are trying to do our bit in winning this war.

There are many ways in which the general public can cooperate with us in an effort to make our work more effective. You, as individuals and as groups, should protect yourself and advise your friends and neighbors to do likewise, against Typhoid Fever, Smallpox, Diphtheria, and Whooping Cough. This may be done by taking Typhoid vaccine every three years, Smallpox vaccine every six years, and Diphtheria Toxoid from 6 months of age to 10 years, followed by a Schick Test four months after vaccination, and Whooping Cough vaccine from 4 months to 3 years. All of this protection is available free at your Health Department, except the Whooping Cough vaccine, which you may get from your private physician.

In addition to this, you should take frequent inventories of your own physical condition by having a thorough examination by your private physician. Also, the sanitary condition of your premises should be looked after most carefully and should be kept free from all kinds of rubbish. Cut the grass and weeds from vacant lots. See that your home is properly screened against flies and mosquitoes, and if you own rental property, see that it is kept in first class repair. We have a number of nice concrete-lined drainage ditches here in Grenada, which have been built at a great expense. Do not dump rubbish of any kind into them. Help us keep them open so that water will not stagnate in them and afford a breeding place for mosquitoes.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Hitler found out that his high powered mechanized and motorized army bogged down in the snow and mud of the Russian Winter. Although our Army is largely mechanized the cavalry horse is still a highly essential factor in this mounted division and in the Field Artillery. The Army also maintains remount farms where many cavalry horses are bred and raised.

These select horses cost from $100 to $165 and our crack cavalrymen are expert riders and carry on the traditions which have followed the cavalry from the earliest days of the Army. Purchase of War Savings Bonds will insure good mounts for the Cavalry. You and your neighbors buying War Bonds and Stamps regularly every pay day can help buy these horses for the U. S. Cavalry. Invest at least 10 percent of your income in War Bonds.

Fat Saving Methods Are Outlined By Mrs. Neely

Four things to do in connection with the fat-saving campaign:

1. Save all waste fats and use them in preparing foods. This includes pan drippings from roasts; fats trimmed off meat before cooking it; soup skimmings; bacon, ham, and sausage fat that cooks out in the frying pan; broiler drippings from steaks, chops, veal and bacon. Some of this fat can and should be used for seasoning, frying, baking, or making gravies. Every tablespoon used means buying less fat at the store. Save deep fats, whether they are lard or vegetable shortening, from fried potatoes, fish, doughnuts, and so on. Use them over and over until they are too dark and strong.
2. Pour the surplus fat into a clean, wide mouth can, such as coffee or tomato can. Strain this fat as you pour, to remove meat particles.
3. Keep the fat in the refrigerator or some other dark, cool place until you have a pound or more.
4. Take the fat to your meat dealer or frozen locker plant.

Four things not to do:

1. Don't take less than one pound at a time to meat dealer.

2. Don't take the fat in a glass container, glass will break.
3. Don't hold the fats until they are rancid, if you do the glycerine is reduced.
4. Don't take your fats to the meat dealer on week ends.

FLYING FORTRESS SAVES LIVES, PROTECTS YOUR SONS AND LOVED ONES

Lieut. Col. John A. O'Keefe, valiant soldier of the first world war, Adjutant General of the Mississippi National Guard for a number of years, is now on duty in Africa. What he says is important. Read Congressman Ross Collins, Meridian, Mississippi

Dear Ross:

I have had the most wonderful reports on the Flying Fortress both from our own fliers and the RAF. They are all high in their praise of this plane and I feel that the tremendous job that you did in getting the money appropriated for the first one that was built, and the vision that you had, when you were so far ahead of all of us in realizing the value of this four-engine plane, is now being paid.

Many a life of those flying in them and many a life of those who are protected by them will be saved by this great weapon. The fathers and mothers of those boys who are so fortunate to have this protection should be more than grateful to you for this and should ask God's blessing on you repeatedly. I remember very well the struggle that you had to put this legislation across.

Medical officers have long recognized tobacco as an aid to morale among our armed forces. Surveys among the men themselves have shown that tobacco is their favorite gift. If you have a friend or relative in the Army, Navy, Marines, or Coast Guard, who smokes a pipe or rolls his own, nothing would be more appreciated than a pound of his favorite tobacco. Prince Albert, the world's largest-selling smoking tobacco, in the pound can be recommended by local dealers as an ideal gift for men in the service. Adv.

Kidneys Must Work Well

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headach, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling. Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the century over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

A Little Visit

By GERTRUDE ROBINSON
(McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.)

MARY JANE put the big blue-gray cat on the table back of the red geraniums and Mums stuffed her arms into the sleeves of her red coat so they stood out like fat sticks.

She could see into Mums' room. It used to be Daddy's, too. Now she had to go upstairs to the spare room when she wanted to play five little pigs with him mornings. This morning he didn't play a bit with her, just told her to take a nap.

Next thing she knew his truck was rattling over the bridge and then there was breakfast all alone with just Mums and Baby Dan. Now Mums was all dressed up in her dark blue suit and her fur coat was out in the car.

"Isn't Daddy coming, too, Mums?" Mums' eyes were blue as blue could be and they didn't see her a bit.

"We can't wait for him," Mums kissed her and her lips were cold and stiff. "You know he went to Rutland with the load of potatoes, and he's coming back this afternoon to get another."

Mums didn't sound like Mums. The kitchen was queer, too, with the table set for one. There was a cloth over cake and cheese and bread, and on the stove in the tiny skillet was hash ready to warm up.

Mums put her in the front seat of the car, with Danny between them. The back seat was full of suitcases.

"We're really going visiting, Mums?" Mary Jane hadn't believed it before.

"Maybe," Mums started the engine.

"Then I must get my visiting, go-to-church bag. Please, Mums," Mary Jane was out of the car. In the sitting room closet was her red leather bag. Daddy had given it to her on her last birthday when she was five. There was a round, shiny dollar in the bag and her hanky with the blue flowers in the corner and the little book of stamps Daddy had given her so she could write at least a weekly letter to her Grand-ma.

On the way out she stopped to kiss Bubs on his black nose. He was curled up on the little table beside the lamp. Right near him was a letter. Mary Jane knew a letter was meant to be mailed. This one had no stamp on it. Mums had forgotten it. She took the precious stamp book out of her bag and carefully stuck one on the envelope and slipped the letter into the bag. When they passed the letter box she'd reach out and drop it in.

When the sun had gone down they stopped at a bit of a house beside the road. Outside was a sign. "Tourist Camp," it said in letters so big Mary Jane could spell them out. She could see Mums cooking steak over a big fire outside, with lots of other women. Danny was asleep in the funny bed fast to the wall. There were the suitcases opened and things popping out. Maybe this was where they were going visiting.

Just then a man came up in a rattling car, all excited. Mary Jane heard something about a truck and potatoes spilled all over the road.

"Mums! Mums! Was it Daddy?" She ran to her mother and began to cry.

"Sh-sh-sh—" whispered the women.

Mums didn't say a word. She tucked them into the car again and they were off like mad, leaving the fragrant steak behind. When they came to a telephone office Mums went in. "He didn't answer. Nobody's there," she said when she came out, just as though Mary Jane understood.

The church clock was striking twelve in the dark when they drove into their own yard. The kitchen was just as they had left it, the table all set and the skillet with hash in it on the cold stove.

"Thank God!" Mums' voice sounded all choked. "He hadn't been here before it happened. He didn't know—" She stepped to the little table and felt under the lamp. "He did—come in. It's gone! He didn't stop to eat his lunch even."

"Just then the telephone rang. 'Yes, John! Oh, John, you're not really hurt?' Mums' voice was so glad Mary Jane danced up and down. 'No—I was—out when you called up—and this afternoon—'"

The telephone went dead. Mums lighted the fire in the stove and pulled the tiny skillet forward. Then she fairly flew upstairs and came down with her arms full of Daddy's things.

The next thing Mary Jane knew a truck was rumbling over the bridge. She got out of bed and trotted to the kitchen. Mums was putting wood on the fire. The sun was just getting up, round and red.

Then Mary Jane saw her precious red bag on a chair. "O, Mums, I forgot! I put a stamp on and then I didn't drop it in the box." She opened the bag and took out the letter.

Mums gave a little cry as though she couldn't believe something. She snatched at the letter and stuck it, beautiful stamp and all, right in with the stick of wood. Then she caught Mary Jane in her arms and ran to the door. She hugged so tight it hurt. And then there was Daddy hugging them both.

Accidents, Deaths on Farms PreventableTake Necessary Steps Now
To Ward Off Tragedy

Farming is a dangerous business. Every day at least 10 persons on U. S. farms lose their lives by fire or accident, and at least 800 are injured.

Many of these accidents and fatalities could be prevented by making farm repairs promptly.

Today when every farm worker is needed in agricultural production, it is doubly important that preventive measures be taken on all farms to avoid the tragedy of accident or death, or interruption in the work program.

Every farmer should make up a household tool kit consisting of a small hammer, a small and medium size screw driver, an adjustable S-wrench, nail sets and pliers.

Put the tools in a homemade tool roll fitted with pockets or in a carrying box.

Easier to Repair.

With such a tool kit handy it is a lot easier to take care of repair jobs.

Engineers of the U. S. bureau of agricultural chemistry and engineering place loose floor boards and stair treads high on their list of farm and home hazards. The short time required to repair such conditions could well be spared from even the most important farm work. Uneven and badly worn floors are dangerous, too, as are loose or broken hand rails, especially at steep stairways.

Broken window glass should be removed. Badly worn sash cords, often factors in accidents, should be replaced.

Weak or broken ladders are the cause of many injuries. Going through ladders is more unlucky than walking under them. Stepladders are a special hazard because they are used so frequently and are not so simple in their construction as straight ones.

A loose board or a door with a broken hinge can be picked up by the wind and do great damage. The farm shop usually has the equipment for such repairs.

They should be made as soon as the need is noticed. Boards with nails in them left lying around are a frequent cause of serious accidents and a threat of dread lockjaw.

They'll Last Longer

Now that the production of all farm equipment requiring rubber tires, except combines, has been discontinued, farmers who have rubber-tired implements and tractors can make them last longer with a little extra care.

Some of the most important points in tractor care are to keep tires properly inflated at all times, keep tires from contact with oil and grease or other material harmful to rubber, inspect all tires regularly for cuts, bruises and other damage and make needed repairs promptly.

Tractor tires should be well weighted at all times, especially under heavy load, to prevent excess wheel slippage which also causes rapid tire wear.

Unnecessary traveling over rough, sharp rock-strewn and gravel roads cuts down on the life of a tractor tire.

Wherever possible keep off the road, and on the earth which wears tires down less.

Heavy Yielding Hybrids

Still in the "laboratory stage" a decade ago, hybrid corn is being planted on 30,000,000 acres of mid-west farm land this year, according to estimates of the Middle West Soil Improvement committee. Hybrid owes its amazing popularity to its heavy-yielding qualities. It makes a heavier drain on the soil than open-pollinated varieties. Thus it is necessary to see that the soil's resources of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash are replenished each year.

A stiff wire brush is a great aid in keeping the burners of a gas or electric stove free from crumbs.

A little candied ginger, finely chopped, gives zest to a fruit cocktail, salad or sherbet. It also is good added to whipped cream and used to top puddings. Be careful to use just a little of it, however.

Copper flashing around pipes, dormer windows and the edges of roofs never needs painting. But copper is now on the priority list. If you have or are installing galvanized flashing, remember that it should be examined frequently and kept covered with paint.

A good way to utilize stale bread is to make crisp rusks to eat with butter and cheese. Break up the bread into fairly equal sizes, dip into a little sweetened milk, and bake in a warm oven until dry and crisp.

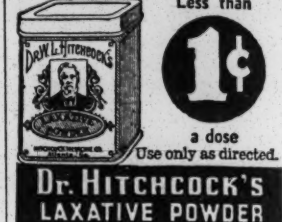

Phosphorescent Paint

With blackouts in many cities, more interest is being shown in phosphorescent paints, which glow for hours after exposure to light. They do so because they absorb light, like a storage battery, then give it out over a long period. As the light is absorbed, electrons in the atoms of paint are displaced from their orbit. As the electrons return gradually to place, they release energy in the form of light.

Lace Makes Lovely, Dignified Midseason Suits and Dresses

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

KEEPING women attractively and suitably apparelled with minimum yardage and maximum good taste and ingenuity is the responsibility which rests with designers in these momentous times. Realizing that the "feminine touch" is a part of every woman's duty to her country, those to whom the task of timely costume design has been entrusted turn to lace as a wonderfully effective weapon when it comes to combating the tenseness war brings on and maintaining a high morale front. Then, too, lace is non-priority, which counts greatly in favor of its use.

That dress-up call which comes to women after they have spent hours and hours in war service, as so many thousands are doing these days, is being perfectly answered not only by gowns made of lovely lace but by the newest gesture, the suit-dress tailored of lace. See the "full-dress" jacket dress of black celanese lace shown to the left in the above illustration. You'll be ready for every occasion with a stunning twosome like this in your wardrobe collection. One of the nice things about celanese lace is its fine sheen and choice silken look.

It adds swank to this costume that the jacket is well cut on the longer lines so smartly in fashion this season. Self-lace covered buttons add to the fine finesse of this charming outfit. The sleeves are long and snug to make them perfect for the long or short colored gloves which add dash to black lace. There's always a ladylikeness about long sleeves. The dress has a discreetly flared skirt which flatters the figure. This ensemble is completely smart and in good taste for the street, restaurant or for dancing. The hat with its cunning lace frill is a masterpiece in coquetry as it dips saucily over the brow and swings high to the back.

Two romantic fabrics are combined in the charming dress picture to the right. For this attractive dress black lace is used with black crepe. This disarmingly lovely afternoon costume would decorate any scene to good advantage. The slim skirt is knife pleated for added interest. The rather tailored jacket is nevertheless dressy because of the mere fact that it is lace. The long, narrow sleeves are edged with the black crepe, and the collar and closing are bound in the crepe, cardigan style. There are two large patch pockets.

There's an exquisiteness about sheerest of sheer black Chantilly lace which always carries an aristocratic air born of years of high style prestige. Chantilly lace will ever and always continue to give that wonderful feeling of assurance only the best can give. Pictured in the inset is a blouse of patrician black Chantilly lace such as never fails to perfectly complement feminine beauty. A blouse of this type will prove a most treasured possession. They carry these black lace charms in almost any important blouse department or specialty shop. If you know how to sew, the making of the blouse is simple, and remnants of perfectly exquisite lace are often available at prices to fit low budgets. When this lace fantasy is completed, you'll find it a priceless possession.

As to lace accessories, you can get adorable little calots to wear back of your pompadour, also an assortment of lace mantillas, lace gloves, long or short. The climax is reached in tiny lace butterflies mounted to wear as earrings.

Pastel Plaid

Choose for your fall casual coat a plaid wool in soft pastel coloring. This is a coat that college girls adore and young matrons find utterly to their liking. The colors are so blended they "go with" everything. The tuxedo collar is excellent style, and the slashed pockets are a practical detail. The beret is especially a "conversation piece," for fashion's stamp of approval is affixed to berets in accents bold and clear. They are not only showing berets in conservative dimensions, but the huge beret either in felt or velvet registers as a "fashion-first" timed for immediate wear with summer and midseason frocks. Some of the new, large berets are dramatically feathered or strikingly and picturesquely quill-trimmed.

Less Formal Wedding Dresses Can Be Pretty

The many marriages taking place at a "moment's notice," so to speak, because of limited furloughs for those in service and other circumstances of war, are bringing about a trend to practicality in the matter of simple ceremony. In consequence, many brides are giving up the idea of an elaborate wedding gown, preferring a simple frock or suit which will be wearable for various occasions later.

Summer brides who cling to the idea of white are looking lovely in dainty organdies or marquisettes which can double after the wedding for party wear. The suit of bengaline lavished with white, frilly neckwear and other snowy detail is the choice of many a bride who needs must do away with formality.

Decorative

Charming are the picturesque snoods which young girls are wearing this summer. There simply is no limit to the decorative detail being lavished on these cunning head coverings. An unusually attractive snood is made of red ribbon latticed and tied with myriads of wee bows, with gay felt flowers clustered about the lower section at the nape of the neck.

New Tweeds

Comes into the autumn fabric realm a series of new tweeds among which the weaves in olive green tones look refreshingly new and outstanding. Again color will be stressed in woolsens, notably bright reds, greens and blues lighter than navy. Gold tones, molasses brown and grape colorings are also in promise.

ABRAM: A PIONEER IN FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 12:1-9; Hebrews 11:8-12

GOLDEN TEXT—Fear not, Abram: I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward.—Genesis 15:1

Without faith it is impossible to please God (Heb. 11:6). The opposite is also true, namely, that faith always pleases God. As we read the Bible and consider Christian experience, it is evident that God is constantly longing to show Himself strong in behalf of them who believe Him (II Chron. 16:9).

Abraham was not the first man to walk by faith. Before him came such men as Abel, with his acceptable sacrifice; Enoch, with his walk pleasing to God; Noah, who believed and obeyed; and others.

But Abraham was nonetheless a pioneer of faith. He had many other noble characteristics, and was a man of such distinction that his memory is venerated by Jews and Mohammedans as well as Christians. Yet his real claim to an outstanding place in history is that by faith he responded to God's sovereign act in choosing him to begin a new nation, to be His chosen people.

We note two important points about faith:

I. Faith Makes Demands.

In the very nature of things, faith calls for action consistent with belief. "Faith without works is dead" (James 2:26), that is, not a real faith at all. In Abraham's life (and in our life) faith calls for:

1. Separation (Gen. 12:1). "Get thee out" was God's command to Abraham. To accomplish His divine purpose God had to take him out of the heathendom of his fathers, and start anew. It is His command to His followers today, "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord" (II Cor. 6:17).

Who will doubt that this is the crying need of the church today, for instead of the church being in the world seeking to win it to Christ, worldliness has come into the church and devitalized its message.

2. Obedience (Gen. 12:4-6; Heb. 11:8, 9). "Abram departed, as the Lord had spoken" (v. 4). He didn't know where he was going, but he did know who had called him, and he went. Faith knows God, and obeys Him without hesitation and without reservation.

Obedience is a virtue that needs to be revived, in the home, in school, in society, and especially in our relation to God, for there surely should be no disobedient children in the family of God. He merits and expects obedience.

3. Trust (Gen. 12:7-9; Heb. 11:10). An assured reliance on the Word of God is a part of faith. God made a promise to Abraham. He accepted it, and worshiped. Here was no questioning, no bargaining, but simple trust in God's word. In fact, there was anticipation of even greater things to come (Heb. 11:10).

We need men of vision and that means we need men who by faith can see the unseen, who can see "a city which hath foundations" even in the midst of destruction and disorder. "In God We Trust" must be more than a motto on our coins if America is to survive.

II. Faith Brings Results.

The world wants to know if a thing works before accepting and approving it. Well, faith really does work! It brings:

1. Blessing (Gen. 12:2, 3). God is always on the giving hand. "I will bless," was His word to Abraham, not only for Abraham himself and for the great nation of which he was to be the father, but to "all the families of the earth" (v. 3). How gloriously that promise was fulfilled in the coming of Christ our Redeemer, who also was a "son of Abraham" (Matt. 1:1).

2. Protection (Gen. 12:3). "I will curse him that curseth thee." That promise to Abraham is still binding and valid. God is not through with Israel. The nations and persons who have vented their hatred upon the children of Abraham need to take notice.

We need to be reminded that God's protecting care is just as sure over us who bear His name. We too are "safe in Jehovah's keeping," even in what is perhaps the darkest hour in the history of the world. Faith in God brings to us the protection of His almighty hand.

3. Fulfillment of Promise (Heb. 11:11, 12).

The entire promise to Abraham hinged on the birth of a son, something which was, humanly speaking, beyond all possibility. But because Sara, joining Abraham in believing God, "judged him faithful who had promised," it came to pass.

"With God all things are possible" (Matt. 19:26). He delights in doing the impossible in response to the faith of His children. Apart from that fact we might be fearful, yes despondent, but "with God" we say again, "All things are possible."

Formerly Miss Hill of Houston, Texas, was given the honor of being the charming hostess at the home of Mrs. L. J. Dook, Miss Eleanor Hardy, Hill of Houston, Miss.

The first and only lady to complete a bridge table at the home of Misses B. Hill and L. Hill of Houston, Texas, was Miss Hill of Houston, Texas. The house was beautifully decorated with white roses from the garden of the home for this occasion, and bridge tables were arranged in the dining room. A luncheon with red drinks was served at the conclusion of the games.

Mrs. John T. Salmon and children, of Chicago, are visiting their mother and grandmother, Mrs. E. L. Wilkins and Mr. and Mrs. Will Salmon.

While here, Mrs. Nell Carothers was the inspiration for several informal social gatherings. Those to have friends in for Coca-Cola and to greet Mrs. Carothers, were Mrs. Hurd Horton, Mrs. H. J. Rogers, Mrs. Patty and Mrs. Andrew Carothers.

Miss Dook, one of the most charming of our summer visitors will be here a week, adding much pleasure to the social life of the social group.

Mrs. Linden Wright, nee Mary Lou West, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Wayne Y. West.

Seen, Heard and Told By The Editor

Tom Thomas, of Duck Hill, was a recent visitor.

I did not know until recently that "Larkin Campbell" had bought the Gordon, Birmingham place four miles north of Grenada.

I did not know until Saturday that W. L. Bousha had reopened the store on the corner of Dook and First. His place was taken over by the government for part of the army camp.

Miss Bailey reached into the pocket of her coat and extracted two one-dollar bills and this sum places him in good standing until next July.

The city has some mules and a mow on the hill. I believe the city could save a lot of money by saving the hay on a lot of the vacant lots in Grenada. The weeds would not hurt, as the mules have nothing to do at night but graze the cured hay from the cured weeds. The city beautiful is not so beautiful in those parts where there are weed-infested vacant lots.

The job just men managed to keep both and Greenfield out of devilment last weekend. Do it again this weekend.

Pete Lattimore, power truster, of Greenville took the hint about that prohibition business and sent in a check.

A good slogan for somebody running for Mayor next time would be, "More street lights and less stop lights." Some of these stop lights are just damn nuisances.

How To Feed Heifer Calves To Save Milk

By Feeding Calves a Dry Food, More Milk Is Available for Defense Use.

Above amounts of milk are for Holsteins, Brown Swiss and Ayrshires. Feed 1/5 less for Guernseys and Jerseys.

It takes approximately 200 gallons of milk to grow a milk-fed Holstein calf to 16 weeks of age. But a fine calf can be grown on only 25 gallons of milk. If the other 175 gallons are replaced with about 400 pounds of dry feed. That's releasing a lot of milk for human consumption, milk for which the government is asking as part of the national defense program.

The plan for saving this milk is simple, according to E. B. Pratt, dairy specialist with Purina Mills, manufacturers of a dry calf feed called Calf Startena, rich in the ingredients for a growing calf needs.

Briefly, the plan is this. The calf is permitted to suck for the first three days. During the next four days, she is given a quart of milk night and morning, plus all the Calf Startena she will eat. During the second week the calf receives two quarts of milk night and morning, plus all the hay, water, and Calf Startena desired. During the third week, the amount of milk is increased to two and one-half quarts night and morning, but for the fourth week, the milk is reduced to one and one-half quarts per feeding. At the end of the week, milk is discontinued entirely.

"Calves do much better when dry food and water are before them so they can nibble and drink any time they wish," Pratt explains. "Many dairymen prefer timothy or mixed hay to alfalfa or vane hays because calves may over-eat on the latter types and scour. The calves should always have salt available."

Costs Less and Easier to Feed

Pratt says that it is considerably cheaper to grow a calf on the method outlined. Of course, the saving depends upon the price received for the milk sold. He explains that on the usual milk method of feeding, approximately 200 gallons of milk are needed to raise a Holstein calf to four months. On the dry feed method, it takes only about 25 gallons of milk and four bags of Calf Startena. In other words, each bag replaces approximately 40 gallons of milk.

Besides milk, there is also a considerable saving in time and labor. For example, there are no messy milk buckets to keep clean and free of flies.

Sunday afternoon I saw a state highway patrolman turn his car around in the middle of the street. If I could have identified him I would have reported him to Odom. I think the patrolmen are doing fine work, but I think this one set a mighty poor example to other motorists.

Mrs. Dot Taylor has resigned from the ranks of the borrowers and has become a bona fide subscriber. Welcome, Dot.

Forgotten at the time. The aldermen did away with the office of cow catcher, thus ending the era when cows were often at large on the streets of Grenada. The first cow catcher I remember was Mr. Landern Dubard who was also City Marshal and street commissioner. Then Mr. Rayburn served many years as cow catcher, or, more exact, pound keeper. Then Eaf Smith served a long time; then the other Smith who started in 1940. The job was abolished under the latter Smith.

Aint they sweet.

Who has seen a token lately? Personally I have not seen one since I passed through Jackson on the day Pearl Harbor was attacked.

It looks that if Mr. R. L. Taylor, head of the giant compress company, can take note of his expiration date and do the proper things, others could also.
